

Corporate Commons Three: Future home of the Nicotra Early College Charter School

The Nicotra Early College Charter School upholds the highest standards for students to ensure their success throughout high school, to college, and beyond. These high standards are established and supported by the highly qualified individuals we are pleased to have as our staff and administration. Our founding principal, Joseph Zaza, most recently served as the Assistant Superintendent of Staten Island schools K-12. Previously, he served as principal of the Leon M. Goldstein High School for the Sciences, a CUNY affiliated high school located on the campus of Kingsborough Community College. Over the course of his tenure, the school was featured by Newsweek as one of the best high schools in the nation and boasted a graduation rate of 98%. Principal Zaza and his staff strive to attain these high achievements at the Nicotra Early College Charter School by guiding students through a rigorous college preparatory program that allows them to earn a high school diploma, as well as gain an early college experience through our partnership with St. John's University.

From high school, to college, to beyond, TOGETHER.

"We believe that education is the key to success and we know that the key to Staten Island's future is educational opportunity for all children. We see the time and talent dedicated by the Integration Charter School team to the students in their current schools, Lavelle Preparatory Charter School and New Ventures. That gives us the confidence to lend our name to this new school: The Lois and Richard Nicotra Early College Charter School."

Lois and Richard Nicotra

Our Mission

The Lois & Richard Nicotra Early College Charter School's (Nicotra) mission is to promote an accelerated pathway to higher education which enables students to graduate from high school with a Regents Diploma and as many as 60 college credits from St. John's University. Admission to Nicotra is open to students currently enrolled in 7th and 8th grade. Incoming students will begin classes in July 2019.
